Global Law Summit London 2015

This is a world-class international Summit that will be held in London from 23 – 25 February 2015, celebrating 800 years since the sealing of Magna Carta.

The Global Law Summit (GLS) will champion legal and business innovation. This unique event will examine how the rights established by Magna Carta remain crucial to underpinning economic growth as the lifeblood to business, government and society.

The Summit will host a variety of world class speakers and delegates including international Ministers, law firms, general counsel, multinationals, academics, non-governmental organisations and those with an interest in legal education.

It is supported by the UK Ministry of Justice, the British Council, UK Foreign and Commonwealth Office, UK Trade and Investment, the Bar Council, the Law Society, the City of London Corporation and an international network of law firms and businesses.

Global Law Summit Themes

This Summit will focus on the Rule of Law and its fundamental role in global business, government and society. The GLS programme's four key themes and subject areas include:

Driving economic growth through the rule of law

How the rule of law underpins economic activity from consumer commerce to international trade and investment.

Creating the optimal legal conditions for business to thrive.

The 21st Century business environment

Law as the lifeblood of business: from internal governance to regulation, competition and dispute resolution. Considerations in relation to global trade and sanctions.

Building a strong and prosperous society

How the law and its consistent application through government and business is essential to any prosperous society.

Examining the role of justice systems and social stability, equality and the effect of global societies on national legal systems.

The future of the law: citizens, business and the state

Exploring predicted trends and responses to innovation and modernisation of law, technology, business practice, education and society.
